Washington, May 3 (AP)—The conquest of Italy from the time of the Allied landing in September, 1943, until April 28 cost the American Fifth Army 109,163 casualties.

Secretary of War Stimson, reporting this today, said the total included 21,577 killed, 77,248 wounded and 10,338 missing. At the same time, Stimson disclosed that army casualties in all theaters since the beginning of the war have reached 848,089 on the basis of names compiled here through April 21. With navy losses of 102,383, this pushed the losses for both services since Pearl Harbor to 950,472—an increase of 11,099 since last week's report. Stimson said that the unconditional surrender of German armies in Italy had brought complete victory in a "long, arduous" campaign which had knocked Italy out of the war, gave Allied forces a toe hold on the continent, opened the Mediterranean and provided additional bases for aerial assaults against the Luftwaffe and German-held territory.

"In the last year," Stimson said, "there were times when it seemed to some people that this (Italian) front was being forgotten but its effect in draining the strength of Germany was always operating; and pride in our troops and their accomplishments was never lacking."

The Allied campaign in Italy, the secretary said, pinned down and "tore apart" German forces which would have been of the "utmost importance" in defending the French channel coast or in counterattacking after the Normandy landing.

Troops in Italy Had Enough War After 19 Months

With the U. S. Fifth Army in Italy, May 3 (AP)—The abrupt end of the war in Italy didn't come a moment too soon for American soldiers who had battled mud, mountains and Germans for 19 months in this country.

After getting on flatlands for the first time since Salerno, they were just starting in on more mountains and the prospect of fighting all the way to Austria in the snow-topped Alps was not pleasant. A respite of winter clothing already had been made to combat troops.

That was the reason for the chief feeling of gladness over the surrender of all German troops in Italy—the fact that there were no more mountains to fight through.

"You knew the end was coming, you expected it any time," explained Lt. Joe Vokoun, Oakland, Calif., "but now that it actually is here, you almost feel out of everything."

As a matter of fact the front had moved so far forward and out of touch that at least one division, the 88th, fought the Germans for four hours after the peace deadline at 2 p. m. yesterday and suffered at least 10 casualties.

Communications difficulties were so great that as late as 6 p. m. one corps commander ordered a division to "proceed to the next objective with greatest speed."

Many units did not know about the surrender until the news was broadcast on the radio. Correspondents with the Fifth Army did not learn the news until last midnight when a C-47 plane landed in Milan to bring the word.

As a result of this and of the general anticlimactic feeling there was little festivity.

Exchange Awaits Cue From President

New York, May 3 (AP)—When V-E Day arrives officially, Wall Street will take its cue as to what procedure to follow from any proclamation President Truman might make.

Some members of the financial sector felt the chief executive might suggest a brief celebration but it was emphasized that there would be nothing like the two-day spell of rejoicing which will prevail in Great Britain.

New York Stock Exchange officials said they would observe any government request that might be made, as would other markets. But no final decision as to possible suspension of trading has been made and none can be made until President Truman acts, it was added.

Barricades Are Erected

New York, May 3 (AP)—Worldwide Times Square at last decided victory is near. The first wooden barricades have been put into place to protect store windows from V-E Day revelry.

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 3 (AP)—Specialty stocks, notably those of companies with optimistic peace prospects, pushed up in today's market and provided mild buying inspiration for leaders elsewhere.

While Wall Street remained in a more or less cautious mood, as final collapse of the Nazis was expected momentarily, sellers were timid because of postwar prosperity psychology and the belief of some that business transition problems might be less unsettling than predicted. Dividends and earnings served as purchasing inspiration for individual climbers.

Dealings slowed after the opening when prices were uneven. The space quickened as bids began to appear but tapered off. Gains of fractions to two points were well distributed near the fourth hour.

At peaks for as much as eight years were Grumman, J. I. Case, Spiegel, Caterpillar Tractor and American Airlines. Doing fairly well were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Willys-Overland, General Motors, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, du Pont, Montgomery Ward and Eastern Air Lines.

THE PUBLIC CAN HELP

Often the warning has been sounded against the dangers of inflation when the war is over. Just how dangerous inflation may become depends on how the situation is handled by the government and by private business. A great deal, however, is up to the public, which will receive the greatest injury if inflation comes.

The two greatest factors of possible inflation usually pointed out are the great national debt and the big backlog of savings which the people are piling up. If the people rush out and bid against each other for scarce goods, when the war ends, then we will have a nasty kind of inflation. A little forbearance on the part of the buying public will have something to do with avoiding severe inflation.

Inflation comes about through a surplus buying power and the scarcity of goods. A plentitude of money and a scarcity of goods set the stage for inflation. Business aided by government can do its bit toward preventing inflation by increasing the supply of peace-time goods as fast as possible through a rapid and orderly reconversion to peacetime manufacturing. And the people can help by not becoming too impatient and by keeping part of their money back for the rainy day which is bound to come.

Keeping the money in war bonds will be an excellent way to help prevent inflation.

GERMAN ESCAPE

It is not surprising to learn that there is a "suicide wave" in Berlin. That is something which people do when they find themselves in an intolerable situation from which they see no other escape. It has been said that Germans are more likely to adopt such a mode of escape than most of the other races. If so, a "wave" like the present one might be very large.

Germany's enemies, being humane, have no desire to see Germany destroy herself in such a fashion. It would be far better, on both sides, for the German people to face facts, throw down their arms and proceed to make reparation for the wrongs they have done to the Allied Nations. But obviously it would be foolish for the Allies to buy off Germany and forestall such self-punishment by letting her go free. Without reparation and humiliation for the wrongs the Germans have done; it would probably be the same story of aggression all over again when German strength was restored.

The most important thing is to make the Germans understand the crimes they have committed against their neighbors, and feel sorry for their offenses, and make willing recompense. If this could be done, probably the great German problem would be solved. It is a job for ethics and psychology. Who is big enough to tackle it?

REDEEMING PIEMONTE

The French invasion of Piedmont in North Italy is redeeming from Nazi control the homeland of the Italian monarchy. The House of Savoy, under whom Italy was united in 1861, began as Kings of Sardinia and Piedmont. Till Rome was captured in 1870, Turin, Piedmont's chief city, was the Italian capital.

The name "Piedmont" means "foothills," and the province is foothill country below the Alps, much like the Piedmont region of Virginia. The Piedmontese have the free spirit of mountaineers. They are too good a people to be ruled by Nazis. They are to be congratulated on their approaching redemption.

German citizens have been living underground in Berlin as the early Christians did in ancient Rome, but that doesn't make them late Christians.

Hamm is captured, and now Bologna is in danger. There is a lot of point in taking these places, but unfortunately no points to be obtained from them.

One thing of which postwar Germany will not be short: unventilated buildings.

War's destruction is bad enough today; but whatever the Nazis do, armies of the

THE WORLD COURT

In a memorable speech delivered as far back as 1915, William Howard Taft called attention to the fact that issues between nations are of two classes: First—Issues that can be decided on principles of international law and equity, called justiciable. Second—Issues that cannot be decided on such principles of law and equity, but which might be quite as irritating and provocative of war, called non-justiciable.

One set of questions does not involve sovereign rights; they do not concern themselves with the territorial and administrative integrity of a nation. They can be settled if there is the will to settle them. Over such matters, no war need ever take place. And with regard to the second category, many issues are adjustable if nations are willing to keep the peace. Most wars are a product of the desire of politicians to force issues to an immediate conclusion without regard to consequences. Soviet Russia's trick of settling the Curzon Line as the boundary between Poland and Russia by getting the Ukraine and White Russia admitted to the new League of Nations, may have been awfully smart, but that is the kind of smartness that leads to wars.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York has raised his voice above the clamor of trivialities by his address before the Irish-American Historical Society in which he said that the World Court is "the heart and soul of all our efforts" at San Francisco. His argument is: "It would be folly to overlook the fact that a few nations hold an overwhelming preponderance of power in this world. But the right of nations must not forever depend upon their natural resources in steel or oil or magnesium or their ability to build navies or robot bombs. All statements of high principles or mechanics of debate and procedure will be worthless unless mankind comes some day to recognize that all peoples, great or small, have rights—Costa Rica as well as the United States, Panama as well as Russia, Belgium as well as Great Britain. The hope of the world for today is to get on a slantwise which leads to a higher level of international morality. The large and powerful nations must acknowledge the principle that as all individuals are equal before the law of their state, all nations are equal before the law of nations."

That is the gist of the problem of lasting peace. The politicians may vanish some surface at San Francisco. But if civilization is the progress of man, then in his collective state, he ought to be prepared to progress from war to jurisprudence, from balances of power to the Court of Justice, from "The Dominant Three" to the Society of Man. We need not be afraid that San Francisco will do too little to form a World Court; our fear is it will do little more than confirm the tricks of Teheran and Yalta. For instance, what did Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin say to each other at Teheran and Yalta about Manchuria? That question will lead to another World War if Russia, rather than China, succeeds to Japan's position there, or if Russia uses her power and force—built by American lend-lease—to change the government of China to achieve Russia's goals in Asia.

The World Court cannot be subordinated to the authority of any nation, or it will fail. It must be a supreme body with authority to try any aggressor, to mete out justice where the right is. As Governor Dewey said:

"This means that we must be prepared to subscribe to an International Court which is not a panel of arbiters but a Court of Judges. As they build on the present substantial body of international law, the can and there must be increasing acceptance of the court's interpretation of international justice. We cannot, because we must, in order to preserve civilization, learn to accept the decisions of this court in all disputes between peoples and countries."

"Only by planning our ideals and our purposes to this, the highest of all aspirations, can we achieve a lasting peace, inspired by God in the reason of men." (Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

TREATMENT OF VARICOSE VEINS

In World War I, the injection treatment of varicose veins had not been perfected, so that operation was the usual treatment. This meant two or three weeks in hospital and often as long as three months on light duty before the patient was able to return to full duty. Today, the injection method is used in the majority of cases because the solutions now used are close or dry up the surface varicose veins are effectively given little or no trouble.

Another factor in the successful treatment of varicose veins is that the patient first receives a thorough test to find out if the deep veins will carry the blood up from the feet and legs, if the surface veins are destroyed by injection or by operation. In the Canadian Medical Association Journal Dr. C. W. Clark, Canadian Army Medical Corps, states that varicosities are common among soldiers either because they are not noted at enlistment or because where slight varicosities are present they enlarge under service conditions.

I have spoken before of the various tests made before operation. In doubtful cases an elastic bandage may be applied from toes to knees or above; the patient then walks about for some time. If he complains of increased discomfort, it shows that the deep veins are unable to carry the blood should the surface veins be destroyed and so neither operation nor injection treatment is given.

Dr. Clark classifies varicose veins into five types from the mild varicose veins to the varicose vein with ulcer. Treatment consists of injection only in mild cases to surgery and injection in the more severe cases.

By this classification and the special treatment for each of the five types of varicose veins, the results of treatment were eminently satisfactory. Only three patients in the entire series returned with a few small varicosities which were cleared up by one or two local injections.

Seventy-five were re-examined 6 to 18 months after treatment and there was no sign of any return of the varicosities.

There is thus a great difference between the results obtained by the injection method in World War I.

He Can't Beat This Policy

LEE G. MILLER'S COLUMN

49TH Fighter Group, Luzon, P. I.—This crack and veteran P-38 outfit knows how to make the best of a bad war. Especially when it has the luck to be stationed along an ocean beach.

There is plenty of hard work to be done—bumping in support of troops in the mountains nearby, long missions to the China coast and elsewhere, tedious hours of servicing the planes. But off duty the pilots and their ground crews know how to relax.

Last night I was a guest of some of the enlisted men of the Ninth Squadron—the formidable team that Maj. Richard I. Bong and many other aces sprang from at their clubhouse in a former school building. A good Filipino orchestra played. Filipino girls, carefully watched over by chaperones, were on hand. Drinks were available before and after dancing at a semicircular bamboo counter under a sign: "At This Bar Stand the Best Damn Men in the World."

Everything was conducted with decorum. T/Sgt. Raymond "Squeak" Mills, Portland, Ore., a propeller specialist, said that on the rare occasions when a soldier gets disorderly, he is promptly taken to his tent—and he may be supervised in necessary. A few officers were there last night, but as honorary members of the club.

After the girls were shepherded home, late-stayers among the noncoms gave their voices a workout with "Home On the Range" and "Stardust" and a lot of other favorites.

I asked "Squeak" Mills how he got the nickname. He said a big fellow named Ed Kerr, a staff sergeant since gone home on rotation, nicknamed him on the outfit.

"I guess I was about the oldest man in the squadron," Squeak said. He's 30. "Kerr said I was so old I squeaked when I walked."

He introduced me to T/Sgt. Albert "High Altitude" Monte, Albuquerque, N. M. "That's because Monte floats around in a world of his own," Squeak explained.

Then there was T/Sgt. Elroy Trembly, a Minnesotan, called "Nose" because of the prominence of that feature. And S/Sgt. Reber "Bones" Coburn, of Illinois, who likes crapping. Also Sgt. Pete Burdissio, Ukiah, Cal., dubbed "Bananaman" by Kerr.

Master Sgt. "Zeke" Byrnes of Jacksonville, Fla., chief of the squadron, brought his own nickname overseas with him. But Kerr created "Spotlight" for S/Sgt. Elliott Bruesau, Manchester, N. H., who has a Silver Star for rescue from a crashed plane, and "Chubbie" for Corp. Lester Jones of (253 Butler street) Cincinnati.

And "One Wing" for S/Sgt. Lloyd C. Chesney, Paris, Tex., who had an arm in a sling at the time of the naming.

Also "Greek" for a powerful man of Greek-Russian descent who has a honker crusher handshake. And "Digger" for T/Sgt. John L. Ramsey, Indianapolis, an engineer-clerk, who married an Australian girl two years ago. They have a daughter, and Digger hopes his wife and baby will be able to go from Australia to the States soon when he goes home on rotation. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Ramsey, Sheridan, Ind., and he used to be an Indianapolis Times paper boy.

Zeke Byrnes told a couple of stories about the great ace Bong. Once, in the rugged early days on Leyte, Bong was preparing to take off when Zeke's sensitive ear detected something wrong with the way the engines sounded. He drove his jeep into the path of the plane just in time, and talked the major out of going up.

Major Bong must think a good deal of Zeke. When he went back to the States he called on Zeke's wife at San Bernardino, Cal. "I don't know how he found her," Zeke said. "I know I didn't give him her address."

Washington in Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—Take the word of many a serious observer here, Henry A. Wallace is continuing to confound some of his best friends and severest critics. (They aren't the same people.)

As secretary of agriculture back in the plow-under days of depression and later, Wallace took critical bumps from about three points of the compass.

He survived that to win the vice presidential nomination in 1940 in a manner that nearly brought the whole rank and file of the Democratic party down on him. As vice president, he raised his stature in spite of the political black-listers tossed at him.

By 1944 he was so strong that it was conceded only his resignation to the wall of "The Chief" bent his backers from revelling against his being side-tracked in favor of Harry S. Truman.

When he handed the Senate gavel to Vice President Truman, and was nominated as secretary of commerce, again you could have bought Wallace political stock far below par. Not until Congress had stripped his job of those great F. P. C. lending powers would the Senate confirm him for the job.

Some opponents began to whisper gleefully behind their hands about the "end of Wallace." Without the vast lending agency they visualized Wallace as one of the slitties in the farthest back seat of the cabinet carry-all.

Apparently, those opponents overlooked the fact that Wallace learned his politics from the booming and a pre-war tennis ball.

Going quietly about the business of reorganizing the Department of Commerce the new secretary shortly will come forth with a full-sized book called "60,000,000 Jobs." I have talked to some of the men who have been helping him put together the statistics for it. They insist that there will be nothing "visionary" in this Wallace charter for reconversion to postwar prosperity.

I have talked to some political observers who already are calling it the Wallace "catchum" for the presidential nomination in 1948.

Some hint of what it is to contain may already have been given in Secretary of Commerce Wallace's article in the Reader's Digest. In this it is clear that Wallace will fight in behalf of the small business man in the 2,000,000 small business enterprises in this country that employ less than 100

"A Century's Turn"

By E. L. VAN DEUSEN

As one grows older he likes to relax once in a while and recall the years that have flown so swiftly past. One especially likes to remember those who played an important part in the neighborhood or the city in which they lived.

I recall that during the years of the First World War I lived in Ponchocks—one of the garden spots of the city—and one of the leading citizens of that section was Seth S. Staples, widely known Hudson river brick manufacturer, who died on January 8, 1919.

Mr. Staples resided in the Staples home on Grove street, just around the corner from where I lived. He was not only a first class business man but a good neighbor. His wife was also held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends. She died some years ago.

And while talking of brick manufacturers it was on January 8, 1919, that Jay Terry, also well known in the Hudson river brick industry, was elected president of the Kingston Taxpayers' Association. Mr. Terry, who died some years ago, for many years was active in the taxpayers' association, as well as in the civic and social life of the city.

Two men who I knew well died on January 8, 1919. They were LaRue Weber of Home street, for years active in local fraternal circles and Theodore Wiedemann of Moore street, who had served the city as city marshal.

Through my work as a reporter I became well acquainted with both men.

When I was a boy in the years at the turn of the century one of the big dry goods houses of the city was the L. E. Van Wageningen Co. with store on the Strand, and in later years with another store on Wall street.

On January 7, 1909, it was announced that the Van Wageningen store on the Strand would close its doors, and all business would be carried on from the Wall street store.

When the Van Wageningen store left the downtown business district it proved a great loss, as it had drawn many shoppers from all sections of the city.

The Board of Trade was also active in Kingston in 1909, and John H. Gregory on January 6, of that year, was elected president. Mr. Gregory for years has been active in the business life of the city, and I recall that when the Governor Clinton Hotel was erected he was one of the prominent business men of the city behind the venture.

Another man who I knew well was Wesley Waterbury who on January 6, 1919, was elected president of the city's Charity Board—well known as the Department of Public Welfare. Mr. Waterbury for many years was in charge of the branch hardware store on upper Broadway of J. T. Johnson, the Strand hardware dealer.

Later he resigned that post and embarked in the retail coal business with coal yard and office on Foxhall avenue.

Mr. Waterbury was active in local Masonic circles and for years until his death, was active in Roundout Lodge, No. 343, F. & A. M. serving the lodge both as master and as a member.

And while talking of Masonic workers and in 1944 provided 45 per cent of the total industrial and commercial employment.

But that isn't all. Wallace has denounced "balanced economy" as government and out. Planning, yes, but not the kind that binds individual enterprise either to industry or government.

What's more, he has shown some sense of humor in saying that "as a well-known dreamer, I dreamed a better seed corn," and is making his bid for another political bounce. Many of his erstwhile critics here think he may be mounting the biggest bandwagon of his amazing public career.

Today at Conference

Party Politics Have Been Submerged in Many Delegations at San Francisco Conference

By DAVID LAWRENCE

San Francisco, May 3—There is one aspect of the United Nations Conference which has attracted little notice but may be a hopeful sign of the times, namely that in delegation after delegation party politics have been abandoned and national unity achieved.

Thus, in the delegation from the United Kingdom, the representatives of the British Labor Party and the Conservative Party are working harmoniously together. Even in the Chinese delegation, a Communist Party member officially designated by the Communists of North China is sitting down daily with his brethren from the Chungking government.

The American people can feel proud that not only is their own delegation made up of Republicans and Democrats but that they are, in fact, working together as Americans and not as party members.

Thus the assembled representatives of the press were impressed the other day by the spontaneous comment of praise from Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Republican, as to the skill and courage with which Secretary of State Stettinius had been handling the delicate and difficult problem of the last few days at this conference.

There can be no doubt about it—Senator Connally and Representative Sol Bloom, Democrats, do not constitute one faction and Senator Vandenberg, former Governor Stassen of Minnesota and Representative Eaton, Republicans, constitute another. All sessions are attended by the entire group of delegates. There is a frank interchange of views and a sincere effort to arrive at conclusions which will be worthy of the respect and approval of both parties.

But the cooperation is more than a mere recognition that party politics must be put aside. There is actually an administrative teamwork and a genuine helpfulness by one another which makes the American delegation stand out as an effective unit. Whatever differences of opinion there may be are threshed out behind closed doors and inside the delegation. But it must be added, the votes thus far taken by our delegation have been unanimous on almost everything. This is the kind of cooperative spirit that the American people would like to see manifested.

Another evidence of teamwork is to be noted in the cooperation between the various executive departments of our government and the delegation here. Probably no more complicated problem will arise for us than the formula for trusteeship over territory containing dependent peoples or strategic bases. The question has been tackled objectively, and differences of opinion again have been ironed out within the delegation. Commander Stassen is making a splendid contribution on a particular subject and is proving a valuable member of the delegation, though this is his first international conference.

There are many difficult questions to be solved at this conference, but it is a source of satisfaction and of increasing confidence to observe that the American delegation is handling itself as well in the midst of the experienced diplomats from Europe.

VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

WEED THE HILLS BY HAND

USE A SCUFFLE HOE BETWEEN THE HILLS

Pole Beans Repay Proper Care

By DEAN HALLIDAY
 Released by Central Press Association

WHEN POLE BEANS are planted in fertile soil, and given the proper care, they will repay for this attention by producing larger quantities of pods. It will also pay the Victory gardener to enrich each hill of the beans with a shovelful of well-rotted manure or bromus.

Since pole beans grow much larger plants than the dwarf kinds, stout poles must be planted to the hills to support the vines. The seedlings generally appear within a few days after seeds are sown. Two weeks later the young plants should be tied to the poles with strips of soft rag material.

Like all other bean plants, pole beans react badly if their roots are disturbed. Care, therefore, should be exercised in cultivating and weeding among pole beans. And the hills by hand, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. For surface cultivation and weeding between the hills a hoe can be used, preferably a scuffle hoe, as illustrated.

When picking the pods from pole bean vines, do not jerk them from the plants, but cut them free with sharp knife or can opener. Few varieties of pole beans are perfectly stringless at all stages of development, and all should be gathered while still young and tender.

Since pole beans require a hot season to reach edible size, successive plantings are seldom viable.

Jersey Objection Expected
Washington, May 2 (AP)—The New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce was expected to voice opposition today to adoption of the proposed $300,000,000 educational subsidy bill pending in Congress.

A statement on the Chamber's stand was prepared by Alvin A. Burger, the Chamber's director of research, for presentation at a scheduled public hearing of the House committee on education. The statement said the bill, sponsored by Rep. Robert Ramspeck (D-Ga.), would lead to eventual federal domination of the nation's public schools.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, sitting up nights, swelling, grumblings under the ribs, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passage with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

The following members of a card club from here enjoyed a chicken dinner at the Dixie Tavern in Shawangunk on Sunday: Mr. and

Strong President Of Rotary Club

Other Officers Named;
Dr. Martin Talks on Voice Disorders

Edwin Strong was elected president, George Kernochan, vice president; Henry D. Fagher, treasurer and Harry L. Edson, secretary of the Kingston Rotary Club at a meeting of the Board of Directors held Wednesday following the regular luncheon-meeting.

Manuel Reina, president of the newly formed Chamber of Commerce, outlined the program of that organization in a brief talk.

Dr. Martin described the Institute as the only residential institute in America devoted exclusively to the correction of speech and voice disorders and recognized by the American Medical Association. This endowed Institute, formerly known as Martin Hall, was conducted as a college clinic in Ithaca from 1921 to 1938. The Institute not only corrects stammering and stuttering but prepares aides to do speech re-education with soldiers returning from this war, suffering speech disorders as a result of shell shock or injury. Aides trained by Dr. Martin conducted all the speech rehabilitation at the Cape May and Fox Hills Base Hospitals during the last war.

An acute stammerer who has been entirely cured, Dr. Martin has attained an international reputation as a lecturer on speech disorders.

Bus Line Hearing To Be Held in Albany

Corporation Council Arthur B. Ewig has been notified by the Public Service Commission that a hearing will be held in Albany on Thursday, May 24, at 10 a. m., on the petition of the Kingston City Transportation Corp. to permit some changes in routes on the Broadway line and the uptown belt line.

The changes in the belt line are to afford better bus service in the Roosevelt Park section, while the change in the Broadway route is to have buses run over Mary's avenue at certain hours of the day so that bus service to the Benedictine Hospital is afforded.

Several Nations Back Idea to Have Regional Program

want the Argentine delegate, soon to take his seat here, to be made official reporter for the commission on judicial organization. Should such a proposal be made, Russia is slated to insist that the position be held for Poland.

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault of France told a news conference his government would accept the principle of international military bases but would never surrender any territory. France has been worried about retaining French Indo-China and her Pacific Islands.

Leaders of several middle and small power delegations said they would be unwilling to turn over complete control of their military forces to a security council in which they had no voice. They proposed that any country not on the council should give approval before its forces could be summoned to action.

The British completed a plan for international trusteeships over ex-enemy territories which opposes the United States plan for strategic trusteeships to cover military bases. The American proposal would let this country keep exclusive control over key islands captured from Japan.

Conference routine today was limited to organization meetings of commissions and committees. Their job is to work over the scores of amendments that have been proposed to the Dumbarton Oaks plan written by the United States, Britain, Russia and China at Washington last fall.

Issues Take Shape

But behind the scenes, the real issues that will have to be settled here were beginning to take definite shape. Among these the question of the powers of the security council seemed certain to become the most hotly debated.

Under the Dumbarton Oaks plan the council of five permanent powers—the United States, Russia, France, China and Britain—would have the right to call out security forces any time efforts to prevent a breach of the peace failed. A negative vote of one of the powers could block action.

This plan was expressly based on the theories (1) that the nations which had the armies should have most of the authority in deciding how to use them and (2) that the big powers must concur on all important actions if they are to avoid trouble among themselves.

One change in this system is formally proposed by Belgium. Under the Belgian plan, a big power could veto the use of force only when that force was to be employed in its own region. Russia could turn thumbs down on action in eastern Europe, say, but not in South America.

Brazil, on the other hand, proposed to make regional arrangements, such as the Pan-American system, independent of the security council except when an aggression threatened the peace of the world, rather than of a single region.

Those American officials who back the idea that the best way to preserve world peace is to have a security council with world responsibilities say that their main task is to make sure the council will work so swiftly and effectively that no nation will feel it needs special protections to safeguard its own security.

BLOOMINGTON

Bloomington, May 3—The regular annual supper and congregational meeting of the Bloomington Reformed Church at Bloomington was held in the church parlors on April 27 with a large attendance. After a bountiful meal provided by the ladies of the church, under the supervision of Mrs. Joseph Yunker, secretary of the Ladies' Aid, and Mrs. Neel Hotelling, treasurer, the Missionary Society, the congregational meeting was called to order by the Rev. David C. Weidner who acted as chairman. Floyd Every acted as secretary. The reports of the church, treasurers and secretaries of all the organizations of the church were read showing a substantial balance in each treasury and every society in good condition with several added during the year.

Several matters with reference to the welfare of the church were discussed after which the following committees were appointed: For painting and shingling of the church, John Bordenstein, Mrs. Joseph Yunker and Mrs. Walter Hildebrandt. Furnace committee—Henry Fagher, Willet Roosa and John Kallap. Pastor's garage—the Rev. David C. Weidner, John Bordenstein and Mrs. Edwin LeFever.

Two Tons of Clothes
Woodstock, May 2—More than two tons of clothing were collected

Von Opel Is Held In Jersey Camp

Rocket Plane Inventor Will Get Hearing

Philadelphia, May 3 (AP)—The Philadelphia Record reports that Baron Fritz von Opel, German inventor of the first rocket plane to make a successful flight, is in custody at the U. S. Immigration Department's Gloucester, N. J., detention camp.

Von Opel is scheduled to receive a hearing on his appeal for freedom before the enemy alien board here soon. The Record said in its morning edition. He has been interned as an enemy alien since 1942.

The 45-year-old German industrialist who inherited the Opel motor works founded by his father, Wilhelm, once known as the "Henry Ford of Germany," was arrested in Palm Beach, Fla., by the F.B.I. in February, 1942, The Record said.

Increase Payroll Deduction Plan

The Seventh War Loan committee at the Saugerties R.C.A. plant has increased the weekly payroll deduction plan at R.C.A. by $300, according to Jerry Martin and Harry Rigby, Jr., vice-chairmen in charge of payroll savings. The committee, shown above with Mr. Martin, includes Ralph C. Lee, general foreman at the plant; Florence Holton, personnel director, and 10 employee representatives, including Dorothy Davis, Doris Irish, Helen Konsil, Katherine Garrison, Louise Lopez, Genevieve Brainard, Alyce Duytkus, Edna Winnie and Betty Van Vliet.

The increase in the R.C.A. payroll deduction plan followed a recent mass meeting at the Saugerties plant which was addressed by the two county Payroll Savings chairman and Mayor F. P. Clum. Saugerties chairman of the Seventh War Loan drive. Mr. Martin asserted that the Seventh War Loan's national goal of $14,000,000,000 must be made up largely by increased payroll deductions, and Mr. Rigby emphasized the fact that R.C.A. employees hold important jobs in making radio tubes for military use, although they must sacrifice the glamour of war travel and the honor of wearing a service uniform. R.C.A. has had a payroll deduction plan in force consistently since

Woodstock Auxiliary Of Legion Reports

At a well-attended April monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary some interesting reports were read. Welfare and rehabilitation work are first in the program and many needy have been given assistance. Mrs. Wesley O'Brien represented the auxiliary at the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association annual meeting held in the Governor Clinton Hotel in Kingston.

The auxiliary has accepted the responsibility of furnishing the Legion building in Woodstock and dishes and tables are among the most recent purchases.

An interesting article in the current issue of the National News of the American Legion Auxiliary was read to the members. One paragraph read as follows, in part: "The Government will pay the cable expense of one message every month during his (sick or wounded soldier) hospitalization overseas."

Families with hospitalized men in service overseas are taking advantage of the opportunity to send a little message of cheer (five words) to their sick and wounded every month.

Planning for Poppy Day, Mrs. Lillian Downer, unit poppy chairman, says, "The wearing of the poppy has become a silent pledge, renewed each year, that the people of America have not forgotten the responsibility they have been given by their fighting men of both wars. There is no fixed price for a poppy; whatever is given is welcome."

Airport Bill Is Before Senate as Part of Program

Washington, May 3 (AP)—A half-billion dollar federal aid airport construction bill came up today before a Senate obviously absorbed in the prospect of imminent German collapse.

The airport bill would round out a postwar public works program designed to improve transportation facilities. Highway aid and waterways improvement legislation already has been passed. Under the pending measure the government would spend $100,000,000 a year for each of five postwar years to construct 3,000 new airports and improve 1,600 of the existing 3,000 fields. The federal funds would have to be matched by an equal amount of state and local money. This would make the actual program total $1,000,000,000.

SHELLS GO, MEAT COMES.
Vagaries of the current have robbed the beach at Jeffrey's Bay, on the eastern shore of South Africa, of the magnificent sea shells for which the beach was famous, according to a traveler returning to Cape Town. The same traveler saw a bold notice "eat more meat," in a butcher shop of the Eastern Province district and was offered unlimited supplies of beef and mutton.

Jackson Loses His Prime Defendants

Supreme Court Justice Is to Try War Criminals; Retains Position

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Robbed by death of his two prize defendants, Robert H. Jackson nevertheless set out today to bring to military justice the arch war crimes cohorts of Hitler and Mussolini.

President Truman announced selection of the Supreme Court Justice yesterday as this country's chief prosecutor of those whose offenses in Europe have been so widespread they have "no particular geographical localization."

Hitler and Mussolini's death, Mr. Truman said, means that happily the two principal war criminals will not have to come to trial. But there are others, he said, and they must be brought to book.

Jackson will not quit his seat on the high tribunal. The court late yesterday heard final arguments for the present term. It will meet again on three or four Mondays to announce decisions and then adjourn for the summer.

"It is hoped," Mr. Truman said yesterday, "that the trial of these war crimes cases will have been completed next October when the court reconvenes."

Hall and Canfield Come Home From Atrocity Trip

New York, May 3 (AP)—Reps. Leonard W. Hall (R-N. Y.) and Gordon Canfield (R-N. J.) arrived at LaGuardia Airport by plane early today after viewing the horrors of Nazi prison camps in Germany.

They were among a group of congressmen and newspaper executives who visited the atrocity camps at the invitation of General Eisenhower.

As he alighted from his army transport plane, Hall said he believed all pictures of the Buchenwald camp "although revolting in every respect," should be shown to the American people.

"Even the pictures cannot show the cruelty and depravity of a people who would treat human beings as the German people treated those in their detention camps," he said.

Canfield praised General Eisenhower for "inviting the people's representatives" to view the camps.

The reign of Edward VIII was the shortest in Great Britain's history since that of Edward I, the boy king deposed by his uncle, Richard III, and presumably left with his brother to perish in the tower.

Russians Agree To Rule of Austria By Big-Three Unit

San Francisco, May 3 (AP)—Russia is reported here to have agreed in principle to joint Big-Three occupation and supervision of Austria until that country is ready for its promised freedom and independence.

Details of occupation zones have been worked out through the European Advisory Commission at London, say ranking Allied officials here for the United Nations Conference. Formal agreement is slated as soon as a few technicalities have been cleared away.

Officials said that, in the main, the plan calls for three zones. Presumably the Russians will have the eastern zone, of Austria, the British a southern zone joining their Italian theatre command, and the United States a northern zone linking with the American zone in Germany proper.

The plan for joint control has gone forward without respect to the fact that the Russians recently recognized a new government for Austria in a single-handed manner that drew criticism from both Washington and London.

Indications here are the United States and Britain find nothing objectionable in the political makeup of this government, which includes only two Communists along with representatives of various other parties considered acceptable to the Allies.

What drew criticism, it was learned, is that Russia failed to consult the United States and Britain about the new government beforehand and only sent word of its formation when it was too late for them to say whether or not they like it.

Revisions Will Be Possible
San Francisco, May 3 (AP)—The United States, China and the United Kingdom have agreed informally that there must be some provision in a world charter to leave the gate open for revision. In discussions between Edward Stettinius, T. V. Soong, and Anthony Eden, it was learned today, virtual agreement has been reached that another international conference may be called whenever three-fourths of the nations in the general assembly and a majority of the 11 nations on the Security Council feel the charter needs changing or extension.

Their ideas have been communicated to the Russian delegation. As yet the Russians have made no reply.

SIGNING SURRENDER DOCUMENT IN ITALY

Lt. Gen. W. D. Morgan (seated), of the British Army, signs the instrument of surrender of German forces in northern Italy and western Austria April 29 in the royal palace at Caserta, near Naples, Italy. Standing (left to right): Lt. Col. J. C. Sweetman, deputy secretary to Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander; Rear Adm. S. S. Lewis, chief of staff to commander of U. S. Naval forces in North African waters; Air Vice Marshal G. B. A. Baker, chief of staff to deputy air commander-in-chief, Mediterranean; Maj. Gen. A. P. Kisenko, Russian; Lt. M. Vranovsky, Russian; Maj. Gen. L. L. Lemnitz, deputy chief of staff, Allied force headquarters. (AP Wirephoto via Signal Corps radio.)

VON RUNDSTEDT CAPTURED BY YANKS

The War Today

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.
Substituting for
DeWitt MacKenzie

The impulse this morning is to write "This Is V-E Day." It would be, if Allied men were not still fighting and dying in the pockets which the last fanatical Germans can't hold but refuse to surrender completely. Or it would be if V-E Day had not already passed.

Historians will argue that V-E Day was the day in 1940 that Hitler failed to invade Holland, or the day he beat himself by invading Russia, the day he was turned back at Stalingrad or El Alamein, or the day he failed to throw the Allies off the Normandy beaches.

Whatever the verdict, the day when Germany changed her military policy, stopped fighting for key centers and began to declare them open cities, will stand as a great climax of the war. We are close to the mopping up, and it begins to look as though the final days of guerrilla warfare may not be so extensive or so exasperating as once expected.

Without Hamburg, Prague, Munich, Berlin, Stettin, Vienna, Bremen or any important hedgehog left, only heaven knows why any Germans keep fighting. Probably only on mad momentum—plus the fact that we haven't arrived yet at all the Army headquarters to accept all the surrenders, that all the Nazi commanders haven't had the opportunity for their last little "bonne saluting" battle to save them from the "ignominy" of surrendering without firing a shot.

Regardless of history's decision on just when Germany lost the war militarily, there will be little debate on moral grounds, Germany lost the war before she began it, by arraying against herself the freedom-loving, right thinking people of the globe.

Nowhere is this so well demonstrated as in Italy, where the erstwhile Hitlerites have just surrendered.

Many a nation is represented there, many of them by fully organized armies—Poles, Hindus and Moslems from India, Jews, Americans, Britons, Canadians, New Zealanders, Australians, Yugoslavians, French, Negroes from New Orleans and Negroes from Africa, Japanese from Hawaii, and the first important expeditionary force ever sent across the seas from Latin America, the Brazilians; Italians themselves since they escaped from their Fascist rulers.

B-29 'ERNE PYLE' DEDICATED

William C. Pyle, father of Ernie Pyle, war correspondent and author killed in the Pacific, unveils the B-29 Superfortress named for his son at dedication ceremonies at the Boeing's Wichita, Kans., plant. The bomber was purchased with $600,000 in war bonds which were bought by Boeing employees. Mr. Pyle is from Dana, Ind.

In Java it is believed that if a husband will slit the wife's robe with a sharp knife from throat to hem without touching her, she will be freed of the pains of childbirth.

ments. We are in the middle of the greatest military surrender in all history. The curtain falls on a Germany, which is not brave, but merely disgusting, in its final tail-lashings.

Du Mond Says Dairymen Can Achieve Prosperity

Morrisville, N. Y., May 3 (AP)—Dairymen can achieve postwar prosperity by supporting milk marketing orders and increasing their own efficiency, says State Agriculture Commissioner C. Chester DuMond.

The two go hand in hand, DuMond contended in an address yesterday before the Madison Holstein Club. "Dairymen can not be expected either to breed cattle for higher milk production or to increase the efficiency of their cows if they can not be assured of a price to justify the labor, feed costs and other expenses involved," he said. "The answer to that is strengthening our system of orderly milk distribution. Support of our marketing system by producers and dealers will continue to be one of the most important factors in the prosperity of New York dairymen."

DuMond said a 20-year increase from 160 to 190 quarts in per capita milk consumption "should continue because consumers are learning more and more of the nutritive value of milk."

Emerald...

the birthstone for May

No other gem in all the world possesses the glory of color of the emerald, and both man and nature have found it impossible elsewhere to reproduce the vibrant green of a fine emerald. Its selection as the gem of the person born in May is a happy one as no gem could in the same way typify the glory of Spring. Neither sunshine, shade nor artificial light effects any change in its appearance.
